ABSTRACT

This paper presents basic data on the Mègang (=Bolu, Pelu) language spoken northwest of Bauchi town in some eight villages. Previously the language was known only from a short wordlist. Mègang is closely related to Gyaazi, part of West South Bauchi. It has a reduced consonant inventory compared with some neighbouring South Bauchi languages, the usual six vowels with length contrast, and three tone heights. A brief section compares the lexicon of Mègang with related languages.

1. Introduction

1.1 Background

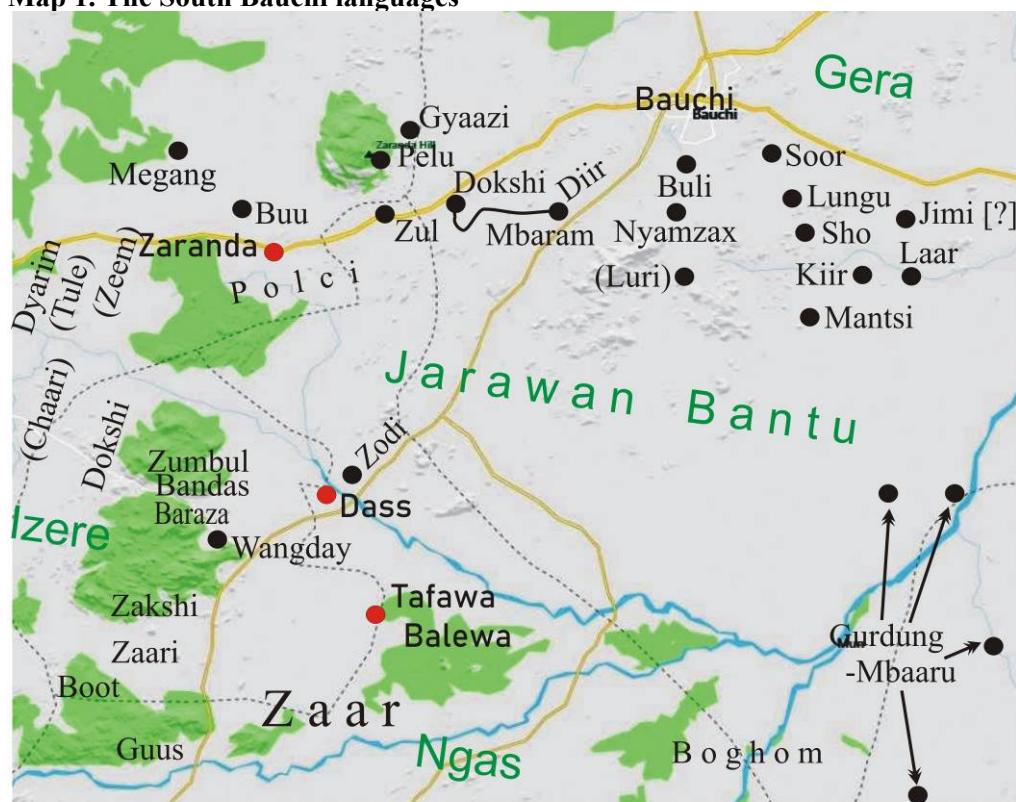

The Mègang language is part of the Geji branch of Western South Bauchi, which in turn is a subgroup of West Chadic B. It is also called Bolu or Pelu in the literature, but this is a version of the name of a village, Byeru, where speakers live. Mègang is spoken in eight villages in Bauchi State, Bauchi LGA, shown in Table 1;

Orthographic	IPA	Comment
Byeru	bìérúp
Hadobilang	hádòbílāñj
Baking Kura	bàkíñ kúrá	Hausa name
Pakimi	pákìmí
Beddare	béddárè
Balla	bállá
Bèm Mègang	bèm mègáñj
Makyera	màkiérá	Hausa name

It is hard to assess population numbers, but many of these villages are quite small, suggesting that there might 3-4000 speakers.

Map 1 shows the general location of the South Bauchi (SB) languages with Mègang northwest of Bauchi town on a bush road which leads through Buu from Zaranda.

Fieldwork on the Mègang language began on 6th November, 2019, in Byeru village, northwest of Zaranda. Additional work was planned, but this has so far been impeded by covid-19 restrictions. The existing materials were transcribed by Michael Bulkaam and Roger Blench in December 2020. This paper provides a wordlist and an outline phonology of Mègang, with notes on a possible orthography. It is strongly underlined that this study is preliminary and we hope to return to add to the dataset and check some items that were not clear.

1.2 Existing literature

The existence of Mègang is first recorded in Shimizu (1978) as part of his survey of the whole South Bauchi group. He appends a 100-word Swadesh list of the language as part of a general comparison. Shimizu establishes a Geji group and Mègang (Booluu, Pelu) is shown as co-ordinate with Gyaazi, which in turn forms a subgroup with Buu. Caron (2008) is a brief study of Buu, with an appended wordlist.

Caron (2009) includes some comparative data on Pelu, which appears to be the same language as Mègang, with a view to showing that some forms undergo intriguing tonal inversion in relation to the closely related Gyaazi (i.e. Geji). His transcriptions vary slightly from those given here, in particular he marks nasalisation on vowels where the present document has a final velar nasal /ŋ/. However, this type of free variation is common in this area, also occurring in the neighbouring Zul. Caron (2012) has also published a study of depressor consonants in Geji. Geji is the subject of an orthographic project, and a Reading and Writing book has been produced, but these are not accompanied by a written-out phonology.

2. Mègang phonology

2.1 Consonants

The basic consonant phonemes of Mègang are shown in Table 2;

Table 2. Mègang consonant phonemes

	Bilabial	Alve- olar	Post- Alveolar	Palatal	Velar	Glottal
Plosive	p b t d				k g	[?]
Implosive	b	d
Nasal	m	n		jn	ŋ
Tap		r
Fricative	[f]	s z	ʃ ʒ	f dʒ	h	f
Lateral fricative	ɬ	ɺ
Lateral		l
Approximant	w			y		²y

/f/ is a marginal phoneme, only appearing in a few words;

fití	to fly
dùfúwā	forest
ŋgēɸí	rib
f̚í	to enter
t̚fi	to surpass

[f] is in free variation with [ɸ] in medial position.

Mègang has a contrastive set of fricatives, including the characteristic lateral fricatives. Compared with z ~ ʒ, /s/ and /ʃ/ are fully contrastive. Thus;

sālsāl	chain
ʃá	shame

kʷásətəkā to scatter
m̥bəʃēl flute

ásəŋ leg
kári gəʃələŋ proverb ʃ̥l turning stick sí they

sōmāt̥i to begin ʃ̥oŋ name

sùulí broom ʃ̥ūŋ cave

/z/ and /ʒ/ are in complementary distribution, with /z/ before high vowels, and /ʒ/ before low and central vowels. Thus;

z̥iŋ water
z̥ul hyena zā:ŋ rope

and [ʒ] before mid-vowels.

ʒ̥eŋ farm
ʒ̥epki vulture

There is no example of /z/ + mid-back vowel.

Preglottalised palatal approximants occur in two words;

Məgəng	Gloss
ɻéčəŋ	tree
ɻākwàlì	nightjar

It is possible this is a loan phoneme from Fulfulde /y/, which is commonly spoken in this area, though these words themselves are not loans.

There is a single example of preglottalised vowel;

ɻèb̥j̥esí sand

The voiced glottal fricative /h/ only occurs preceding back vowels, as in the examples;

hō:l̥i white
hótgəd̥uŋ dawn
hūŋ baboon húní corpse
hú: granary

It is, however, contrastive with /h/. Thus;

Məgəng	Gloss	Məgəng	Gloss
hōttī	to blow	fi:lı̥	white húlí	hyena	fiúnī	corpse

Homorganic nasals

Məgəng has homorganic nasal prefixes, which can bear independent tones. The following examples show the three realisations of the nasal prefix, /n/, /m/ and /ŋ/. Where these precede stops, they occur only before voiced consonants. Only /ŋ/ appears to be tone-bearing in some contexts.

/nd/

ndōklámī	short
ndrá	to fall; to drop
ndrál	axe

/nʒ/

nʒīñ	locust bean seed
nʒʷétī	sweet

/nn/

nnádē	to set trap
nnáŋ	antelope sp.

Where the nasal /ŋ/ is homorganic with the following velar, it can either be tone-bearing or not. Examples;

ŋgēphi	rib
ŋgēkī	chest
ŋgébəŋ	tortoise
ŋgíbī	to catch
ŋgōtī	to search for

/mb/

mbáli	heart
mbáʃēl	flute
mbíkīn	gum of mouth
mbītī	to get; to find
mból	lion

Geminate consonants

Məgəng allows occasional geminate consonants, also reported in Buu (Caron 2008). Examples are given in Table 3;

Table 3. Geminated consonants in Məgəng

C	Məgəng	Gloss
d	Béddárē	village name
k	yèkkéy	what?
l	yíllī	to swim
	íllētī	to whistle
t	sʷāttī	to wipe

Palatalisation

Contrastive palatalisation and labialisation is common in Mègang. Palatalised consonants in Mègang are shown in Table 4;

Table 4. Palatalised consonants in Mègang

C ^j	Mègang	Gloss
b ^j	bìérúp	village name

d ^j	zùdþénj	to give birth
m ^j	lù: gè kámþénj	wild animal p ^j	p̄éltí	to sharpen
k ^j	kjà:ké	star

Labialisation

Labialised consonants are very common in Mègang. Examples are shown in Table 5;

Table 5. Labialised consonants in Mègang

C ^w	Mègang	Gloss
b ^w	mbwákí	custard apple
p ^w	tēmpwá	weeding hoe
t ^w	iltwéj	to come out
d ^w	dwāá	leaf
þ ^w	þwától	navel
dʒ ^w	ndʒwā	sesame
k ^w	kwè:sí	fish
g ^w	gwíl	eye
f ^w	tēfwi	to enter
n ^w	kōōnwí	dry
l ^w	lwā:ní	sweat
s ^w	swātti	to wipe
z ^w	zwéli	fruit bat
ʃ ^w	ʃwéntí	to send ɿ ^w	ɿwé	to drink
ʒ ^w	ʒwéli	to buy

2.2 Vowels

Mègang has a fairly standard six-vowel system (Table 6);

Table 6. Mègang Vowels

	Front	Central	Back
High	i	i	u
Mid	e		o
Low		a

Vowel length is contrastive, but no examples of /əə/ have been recorded.

bà:tín folktale
dwāá leaf

kʷè:sí fish
m̥éé bush

ní: breast
zí: water

kō:lē bark of tree
mōō bow
nōó horn

gū: king
kú:l skin
lú: teardrop

Contrastive length can be demonstrated for all vowels except /ə/ (Table 7);

Table 7. Evidence for vowel-length contrast in Məgang

Məgang	Gloss	Məgang	Gloss
bà:fí	gourd rattle	básí	urine kéjí	to tear; to rip	kʷè:sí	fish mí	we	mí:sí	buttocks
bótí	intestine	bō:tí	to beat; to strike; to hit lú	place	lú:	teardrop

Apart from /a/ and /u/, words do not begin with vowels.

Phonetic nasalisation is marked in some IPA transcriptions in the database. However, this is likely to be an allophone of syllable codas with a nasal and thus not contrastive.

2.3 Tones

Məgang has three level tones as well as rising (Low-High and Mid-High) and Falling (High-Low). There are no clear minimal triplets, but the following indicates the contrast of heights on the initial syllable.

ží body
žilžíkúř butterfly
žítí laughter
žítí ocarina

3. Grammar

3.1 Nominal number marking

Broadly speaking, Məgang does not mark number morphologically. Exceptions are in respect of nouns referring to persons (Table 8);

Table 8. Suppletive plurals of nouns for persons in Megang

Məgang	Gloss	Məgang	Gloss
mélmáň	man	mánìwúntí	men kélíbálaň	woman	móótlìwántí	women yésàmàří	young man	mílmáň	youths yéñkélí	young woman	mílmótlí	young women

3.2 Numerals

Table 9 shows the basic Mègang numerals and compares them to other South Bauchi languages. Megang is evidently similar to Guaazi and Bu, but has a dV- prefix not found in the other languages.

Table 9. Mègang numerals in comparative perspective

Gloss	Mègang	Comment
one	dĕdĕm	This root, usually with initial n- is distinctive for WSB two	dĕlóp	Common root in WSB languages three	dĕmĕkáŋ	Common root in SB languages four	dŭpsí	Common root in WSB languages five	dĕnàntón	Common root in WSB languages six	dĕmăkā	Common root in SB languages seven	dĕníngī	Common root in E and some WSB languages eight	díwsépsí	Scattered across WSB languages nine	nēt'ópsí	Distinctive to the Geji subgroup ten	dĕkúł	Near innovation in the Geji subgroup but shred with Zul

4. The place of Mègang within South Bauchi

Shimizu (1978) places Mègang within the Geji subgroup of South Bauchi, as confirmed in Caron (2009). Innovations supporting this, derived from the comparative list in Shimizu (1978) are given in Table 10.

Table 10. Geji group innovations within South Bauchi

5. Conclusions

Mègang is a lively language of the South Bauchi group of Chadic. Work is continuing in the language and a more in-depth study of the grammar should be possible in the coming years.
